Selected Poetry

THE STHANGER. A poor, wayfareing man of grief Hath often crossed me on my way, Who seed so humbly for relief, That I could never unswer, Nay.

A had not power to ask his name, Whither he went, or whence he came; Yet there was something in his eye That won my love, I knew not why. Once, when my scanty meal was spread,

He entered; not a word he spake; Just perishing for want of bread, I gave him all, he bleased it, brake And ate, but gave me part sgain. Mine was an angel's portion thou; And while I fed with eager haste, The crast was manna to my taste. I spled him where a fountain burst

Clear from the rock; his strength was tion for The headless water mocked his thirst: He heard it, saw it harrying on. I ran and raised the sufferer up; Thrice from the stream he drained my cup; Dipped, and returned it running o'er;

I drank, and never thirsted more. - Twas night: the floods were out, it blew A wintry harrionus aloof; I heard his voice abroad, and flow To bid him welcome to my roof. I warmed, I clothed, I cheered my guest; Laid him on my own couch to rest; Then made the earth my bad, and seemed In Eden's garden white I dreamed.

Stripped, wounded, beaten nigh to death, I found him by the highway sole; I roused his pulse, brought back his brest's, Revived his spirit, and aspplied Wine, oil, refreshment; he wan healed. A had, myself, a wound concealed; But, from that hour, forgot the smart,

And peace bound up my broken heart. In prison I saw him next, condemned To meet a traitor's doom at morn; The tide of lying tongues I stemmed And honered him 'mid shame and scora . My friendship's utmost and to try, He saked it 1, for libra, would die? The flesh was weak, my blood ran chill,

But the free spirit cried, "I will!" Then, in a moment, to my view The stranger started from disguise; The tokens in his hands I knew;

My Saviour stood before my eyes! He spake, and my poor name he named; "Of me thou hast not been unhumed; Them deeds shall thy memorial be; Four not, then didst them unto me."

Go Feel What I have Felt.

Go! feel what I have feit, Ge! bour what I have borner Sink 'neath a blow a father dealt, And the cold proud world's scorn, Thus struggle on from year to year, Thy sole relief-the scalding tear.

Go! weep as I have wept, O'er a beloved father's fall; See every charished promise swept-Youth's sweetness turned to gell: Hope's faded flowers strewn all the way That leads thee ap to woman's day. Go! kneel as I have knelt,

Implore, beseech, and pray, Strive, the besetted heart to melt, The downward course to stay .-Be cast with bitter curse saide -Thy prayers burlesqued-thy tears defined. Go! stand where I have stood,

And see the strong man bow; With gnashing teeth, lips bethed in blood, And cold and livid brow; Go! catch his wandering glance, and see There mirrored his soul's misery. Go! hear what I have heard-

The sobs of sad despate-As memory's feeling fount bath stirred, And its revealings there Have told him what he might have been, Had he the drunkard's fate formeon.

Go to thy mother's side, And her crush'd spirit cheer-Thise own deep anguish hide-Wipe from her cheek the tear;

Mark ber dimm'd eve-her furrow'd brow The gray that streaks her dark hair now-Her toll-worn frame-her frembling limb --And trace the ruts back to him Whose plighted faith in early youth, Promised eternal love and truth; But who, foreworn, hath yielded up This promise to the deadly cup. And led her down from love and light. From all that made her pathway bright, And chain'd her there 'mid want and strife. That lowly thing-a drunkard's wife! And stamp'd on childhood's brow so mild,

That withering hiight-a drunkard's child! Go! hear, and see, and feel, and know, All that my seul bath felt and known, Then look within the wine cup's glow-See if its brightness can atone; Think, if its flavor you would try,

If all proclaimed, 'Tis drink and die! Tell me I hate the bowl-Hate is a feeble word—
I louth, abhor—my very soul
By strong disgust is stir'd,
Whene'er I see, or hear, or tell
Of thee, dark beverage of Hell!
